MRAC functions are run by committee. What are the committees and what do they do?

Meetings - meeting hall, refreshments, raffles, greeters, etc

Newsletter – writing, reporting, publishing, printing, mailing, electronic distribution of club newsletter

VEC – responsible for all VEC and local testing administration and coordination

Repeater – all technical, control, operational aspects of the club repeater

Contests and Field Day – all operating contests and especially Field Day

Education – responsible for all theory and code classes

PR – all printed, posted, announced, etc. official advertising for the club includes photography and photo album, also includes electronic stuff like web page

Committees need volunteers not just to carry out their primary function but for administration duties also. For instance the license class committee needs not only people to teach the classes, but someone to make arrangements for locations and dates, class materials, advertising for the classes, and to coordinate expenses and reimbursements to others on the committee. All committees interface with the board of directors including having someone from the committee attend a board meeting when necessary. The board will turn over day to day operation of the function of the committee to the committee.
